Vincent L. DiCianni founded Affiliated Monitors, Inc. (AMI) in 2004 and has served as the company President since its inception. His vision was to create a company which offered independent monitoring and compliance consulting services to assist government agencies, those who contract with, are licensed or regulated by those agencies. Over the course of its 16 years of existence, AMI has served in the independent monitor role in more than 800 matters under Mr. DiCianni's leadership, working with an array of federal regulatory agencies, such as the DOJ, FTC, FCC, DOT, DOD, FHA, HHS and USAID. The company also works with Attorneys General Offices across the country on matters involving healthcare licensure, Medicaid fraud, consumer protection and other matters.

Mr. DiCianni started his legal career as an Assistant Attorney General for the Commonwealth of Massachusetts under then Attorney General Frank Bellotti. He then went into private practice for twenty years, where he handled many matters before regulatory boards and agencies. He has litigated matters in healthcare, construction, public utilities, consumer protection, employment, and civil rights.

In addition to his law practice, Mr. DiCianni was an instructor in Ethics at Anna Maria College for thirteen years. The class grew out of and informed his interest in the development, analysis, and application of standards of conduct and codes of ethics in companies, as well as his interest in the drivers of ethical behavior in individuals and organizations. Mr. DiCianni utilizes his knowledge and experience in the field of ethics to guide AMI and its clients.

Mr. DiCianni has integrated his interest in ethics with his compliance-related work by developing a process to evaluate companies' corporate cultures, incentives, structures, policies, and controls. AMI's assessments give organizations an understanding of how effective their ethics and compliance programs are, and how they can be improved. In some engagements, AMI works with companies to create or update their ethics and compliance programs, train their board members or employees, or implement industry best-practices. The ethics and compliance services provided by AMI offer practical ways to incorporate both ethics and compliance into regular business operations.

Mr. DiCianni has authored articles on various aspects of compliance and ethical culture of companies. He was interviewed recently by Ethics Intelligence on "How Can a Company Benefit from a Third-Party Assessment of Its Ethics and Compliance Program?" An engaging presenter, Mr. DiCianni often speaks about the benefits of third-party assessments for companies, trends in compliance for multi-national corporations, and making remedial discipline work. Mr. DiCianni is a member of the American Bar Association and its Suspension and Debarment and Public Contract sections.

Mr. DiCianni is proud that AMI has earned the trust and respect of government authorities, attorneys, professionals and companies across the United States. The growth of the company and the success by those who have been monitored by AMI is an acknowledgement of the outstanding services the company provides.

Mr. DiCianni received his JD from Suffolk University Law School and his BA summa cum laude from Suffolk University.
